TOKYO, June 27 (Reuter)—NO STATEMENT WILL BE ISSUED BY THE JAPAN-ESE GOVERNMENT FOR THE TIME BEING ON JAPAN'S ATTITUDE TOWARDS THE RUSSO-GERMAN WAR, THE DEPUTY SPOKESMAN OF THE GOVERNMENT TOLD FOREIGN CORRESPONDENTS TODAY.

"THE QUESTION IS SO DELICATE," he explained.

Asked if the Russo-Japanese Trade Pact concluded in Moscow on June 11 did not conflict with the Three-Power Pact, the spokesman said: "NO. WE MUST BE LOYAL TO THE TRADE PACT IF IT IS RATIFIED."

He added: "THE DATE OF RATIFICATION HAS NOT YET BEEN FIXED." What may be an indication of the Japanese attitude was given by the deputy spokesman in a reply to foreign correspondents as to whether "THE SURPRISING APPRECIATION OF JAPANESE BONDS ON NEW YORK AND LONDON," was due to their being better informed about the position or less well informed.

"Looked at from the strictly military point of view, the German attack on Russia has its favourable and unfavourable side for this country and this Empire," said CAPTAIN CYRIL FALLS, military correspondent of THE TIMES, when he broadcast from London yesterday and discussed how this new development should be considered in relation to the war as a whole.

The time has gone by for complacency. The time has come to face facts: to acknowledge to ourselves that if the British Empire is to survive this war we together with all its other colonies, have got to tighten our belts and play our part in like manner with that in which the people of Great Britain are playing theirs, at any rate so far as circumstances will allow us to.

ECONOMIC PERIL

The gravest peril by far that threatens the British Empire today is not the German raider or in vader by land, sea or air it is not the tank, the bomb, or the torpedo that we have most to fear our greatest danger unquestionably lies on the economic side

In the old phrase, it is for British today a case of "Root! Hog, or die." That may sound despairing to some ears; but I am at the other end of the scale from despair, knowing as I do from my own sixty years' experience, as well as from history, that once the British hog realizes that he has got to root, he does and he survives!

Well! the time has come for that process. How are we going to set about it? In the first place there is the Economic War Effort Committee. You may have tasted its first-fruits with your early morning tea, but its task is not going to be such easy going as that for the most part. A more technical bit of work which they have put through is to draft a scheme for the sale of local War Savings Certificates which will, I hope, meet with the approval of the Home Authorities. But the main problems which the Committee has to solve are: 'How can the importation into Hongkong of non-essengoods be reduced to the minimum?' 'How can the consumption in Hongkong of necessary commodities be administered here, safe under the British flag with the maximum of economy?' and sheltered by Great Britain's And lastly, How can these restric-, might, and if they can afford to tions be brought about without two pay more in taxes, their liability very dangerous reactions being en- and obligation are plain; in this talled? that is to say without killing time of crists they must share to the mainspring of the Colony's the full the burden now being prosperity, our entrepot trade: borne by the people of Great Briand secondly, without crippling in, who are, as the saying is, alour growing ability to supply the ready 'paying till it hurts.' I trust that nothing that 1 say tonight will do harm to those voluntary Funds which are still open. But the new revenue which increased taxation would bring in calls for different treatment. Regarded from the strictly economic point of view the most immediately effective use to which it could be put would be to put it into production here in Hongkong; in other words to build ships-war vessels or freighters-and to produce equipment and munitions of war on the spot.

By so doing not only would we help to pay Great Britain's war bill but we would also secure delivery of the goods at the same time. Every saip-yard and factory at home is busy to capacity whereas here we have ample labour at our doors. The manufactures which our taxas, if spent here, would bring into being would go immediately to swell the stocks of war stores and equipment which His Majesty's Government needs for our sailors, soldiers and airmen. Lastly, the employment so given would help to keep the Colony going: and that is one of our prime imperial duties.

The assertion that the military point of view was not justifiable, His Excellency added, he would not accept.

His Excellency further said that where the Colonial Secretariat had met requests from the Committee with a rebuff, these were not intended and replies had often to be evasive.
